Translating Division

Literary Translation Workshop

Saturday, 14 February 2009

University of Westminster

309 Regent Street, London W1B 2UW

(Nearest Tube: Oxford Circus) –

The University is located in Upper Regent Street between Oxford Circus and Broadcasting House

This event is being organised as a natural extension to the very successful Literary Translation event held in February 2008. Many of you who came last time expressed great interest in attending a hands-on Workshop based on this theme and this year's event is in response to that interest. Based on the results of the questionnaire sent to all of you, the five languages being featured are French, German, Spanish, Russian and Arabic. A separate morning and afternoon session is being held to offer you greater flexibility and allow you to participate in two different language combinations. The workshops are being "facilitated" by experienced literary translators, some of whom also lecture in the subject.
